Traffic Law Observance Saves Lives and Property

Traffic enforcement of traffic regulations on the government's roads has been assigned to the Temporary Traffic Police which is located at Area Headquarters, Thirty or forty members of the force are patrolling all roads leading to and within the Expeditionary Force area.

One of the regulations besides speeding that the Temporary Traffic Police has the duty of enforcing is the one that prohibits the use of hand signaling. One point where many of the men are being stopped is where your left hand is in the intersection of Lincoln road and Dunn. Because of the hand signaling it is almost impossible for Safe Conduct to tell which direction the traffic is supposed to be going in and it is almost impossible for Safe Conduct to tell if the traffic is right or left and this is the reason why we are so often stopped.

While personal assistance is more desirable, no one is used as a substitute for the Temporary Traffic Police and the Temporary Traffic Police can not be replaced.

Booby Traps Lurk in Unsuspected Places

Booby traps, which are devices designed to prevent access to certain areas by creating physical obstacles or unsafe conditions, are found in many places and can be very dangerous.

Booby traps are used in many different areas, including military bases, construction sites, and even in homes. They can be set off by physical contact or exposed wires. It's important to be aware of the potential danger and to avoid areas that may have booby traps.

For example, in the United States, booby traps are sometimes used in military training exercises to test the ability of troops to navigate and avoid obstacles. In this context, booby traps are usually set off by physical contact with an explosive device. However, it's important to remember that booby traps can be set off by anything that triggers the explosive device, so it's important to be aware of the potential danger.

In conclusion, booby traps can be a serious threat to safety, especially in areas where they are not expected. It's important to be aware of the potential danger and to take precautions to avoid areas that may have booby traps.

CONSERVE - CAR AND TIRES ON THE DURATION

Your car is worth more than mere dollars and cents to you now—because it is indispensable by a brand new car. And the tires on it are worth their weight in gold, because there isn’t a brand new one. For your own sake to protect your investment in that car as a direct contribution to the war effort which calls for keeping every essential car on the road all the time. It’s up to you to repair and replace tires. And repair experts to keep your wheels safely rolling.
They know—and are equipped and authorized to give your car and tires the care they need if they are to serve until victory and peace make new ones available.

SAFETY IN ILLUMINATION

To reduce your fuel bill because your car will get longer miles per gallon, wear the lights of your car right. Whenever the lights are outside of the car's natural level, they create a glare which wastes fuel and may be a menace to others on the road. Always keep your car's lights at the natural level and drive with lights on.

Arrival of Lieutenant Charles D. Castles in the Staff Officers Lounge at Fort Benning Sept. 2nd brought much excitement among the enlisted ranks, as each team picked up its colors, buttons, and equipment. Castles, who has served three years in the enlisted ranks, was recently stationed at General Miles Station at Fort Meade, Md., and has been in the Army for ten years. The highlight of the situation, however, occurred when Castles was elected Captain of the 2nd Infantry Brigade in the recent election.
